Delegates to the big Pan-American

Scientific Congress have already arrived in numbers and are registering at the New Willard headguarters, but the final big influx is expected this afternoon, when the "Pan-American special" from New York arrives, escorted by John Barrett snd several dozen Washingtonians, who will meet it in Baltimore.

All of the delegates are expected to take part tonight in a big "get-acquainted" reception in the New Willard, given by Judge George Gray, of Willington, Del., and the official United States delegation.

It is hoped by this means that all the visitors will have become sufficiently familiar with the situation so that they will fit in readily when Ambassa-dor Eduardo Suarez-Mujica, of Chile, opens the Congress in Continental Memorial Hall. Secretary of State Lansing will address this first meeting. There will be but two meetings of the entire Congress. All the others are meetings of the nine sections or of subsections of these. President Wilson will address the final big meeting.

The Daily Bulletin of the Congress, which may be styled the "Pan-Am" for short, will be in Spanish and English. It will be published by John Vavasour Noel, one of the assistant secretaries of the Congress and a Peruvian newspaper publisher of experience.

High School cadets are acting as ushers and pages for the Congress in the New Willard, and all of the hotels which are to house sections of the meetings are being decorated with the flags of the different American Countries.

AN INSTANCE OF DRECO'S POWER

"I was suffering severely from indiges tion, loss of appetite, catarrh, a terrible depressed feeling around my heart, and could not sleep. After eating the slight-est food gas would form in my stomach, causing me great uneasiness and psin, and there was a constant accumulation of mucus in my nose and throat. Roosevelt Might Have Done," Says August Singer, "But"—Believes Wilson Impracticable.

Vienns. Dec. 36.-I have just met th Vienns. Dec. 3.—I have just met the president of the International Press Association, Herr August Singer, editor of the "Neues Wiener Tageblatt." who was the first journalist in the central empires to dare mention peace in his paper. When I asked him why be took this bold stand, he smiled and said: "It does not really take a great deal of courage to talk peace here. We are not in Prussis, you must remember, Everybody in Austria, as well as in Germany, wishes peace, except the generals many, wishes peace, except the generals and the diplomatists, and lately even these, as far as Austria is concerned. want peace.

Believes in Press.

Believes in Press.

"I believe in the power of the unmuz ried press. The time has come for us to show that the pen is mightier than the sword. The international press must heal

the wounds of hatred and make peace possible. Journalists of the belligerent countries, nearly all members of the International Press Association, were old friends before the war, but are now forced by circumstances to slander and denounce one another. Neutral journalists have a great, an admirable task.

You must compel us to stop. The first condition of peace is that peace be catablished in the press.

"It is your duty as neutral journalists
to find somewhere in the neutral world a powerful personality to bring us together. The Pope has tried to act as mediator and has failed, but nobody thinks
any less of him for that, and we all honor him for his good intentions. Now some neutral statesman or scientist must try.
There are three powerful reasons why he should succeed—first, because he is neutral: second, because he is doing an act of humanity; third, because all the world
is sighing for peace.

"This man must invite delegates from the press of the various countries to a private conference on neutral soil. Perhaps he might begin with a few, listen to their advice, and then gradually call in more delegates until every paper of importance is represented. These delegates must then confer with their governments, and at last we all adopt a common platform as a basis for peace."

Not a Woman's Work.

"Perhaps King Alfonso of Spain might be prevailed on to call such a meeting," I suggested. Singer shook his head. "Spain is too secluded. We cannot get

"Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, then." "Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, then."
"I do not believe in a woman taking the initiative in this cause. Whoever does so must be a powerful personality, a man in the fullest sense of the word. Your Roosevelt might have done it, but, alas, I am afraid he is too prejudiced against our side. It is unfortunate, indeed, that you have not a President of the Roosevelt type at the White House.

Knights Templar of the District held their usual "Christmas observance" yes-terday, closing at noon.

Joint services were held by Columbia Commandery, No. 2, and De Moisy Com-mandery, No. 4, in the commandery asy-lum at Masonic Temple. An innovation was the admission of the wives and women members of the families of the knights.

The exercises were opened with the Lord's Prayer, followed by the Christmas hymn. "Silent Night, Holy Night," by the choir.

Tribute was paid to the deceased brothers, the audience standing while J. Walter, Humphers, 1987, "No. Night.
